Beyond Strengths
What the Colour Energies Cards Don’t Always Show

A preview guide comparing the positive energy statements with their hidden blind spots.

The Colour Energies Blind Spots Card Deck

Introduction:

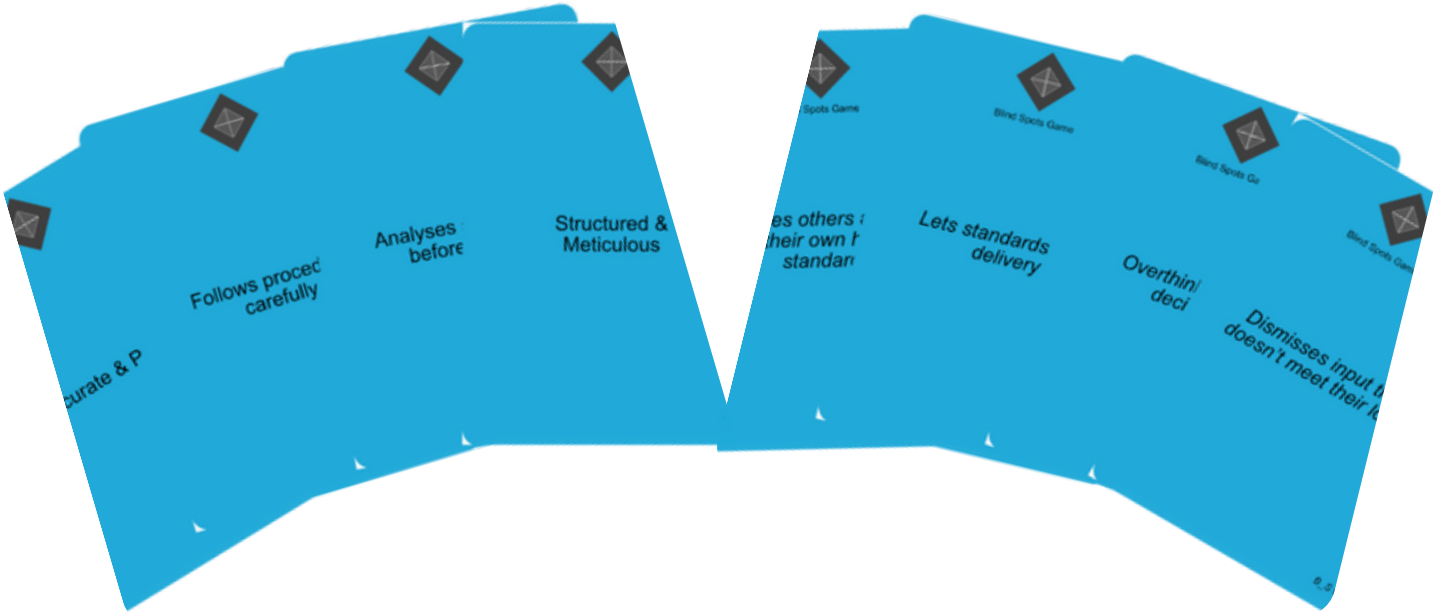
Most feedback tools focus on our strengths—but true growth comes from understanding what others see that we don't.
This guide offers a first glimpse into the Blind Spots Card Game by comparing four classic Colour Energy card statements with their corresponding blind spots. One set reveals what we celebrate. The other reveals what we sometimes miss.

To see ourselves as others see us

Blue Energy

Noted for valuing ‘Correctness’ in everything they do, people with a preference for Blue Energy tend to be task and process oriented.

Strength	Blindspot
Accurate & Precise	Judges others against their own high standards
Follows Procedures Carefully	Lets standards delay delivery
Analyses a situation before acting	Overthinks decisions and delays progress
Structured & Meticulous	Dismisses input that doesn’t meet their logic



Green Energy

Noted for valuing ‘Harmony’ in everything they do, people with a preference for Green Energy tend to be people and group oriented.

Strength	Blindspot
Supportive and giving	Struggles to say no, even at personal cost
Loyal, accommodating & sympathetic	Avoids conflict even when clarity is needed
Values Harmony	Fears rejection when expressing disagreement
Sensitive to the needs of the team	Takes criticism personally and retreats

Yellow Energy

Noted for valuing ‘Involvement’ in everything, people with a preference for Yellow Energy tend to be expressive and ideas oriented.

Strength	Blindspot
Sees the positives in other people	Seeks approval and attention over results
Excited by opportunities	Overstimulates group energy without structure
Enjoys variety and constant stimulation	Struggles to follow through on long-term goals
Articulate and eloquent in communication	Gets lost in storytelling instead of structure

Red Energy

Noted for valuing ‘achievement’ in everything, people with a preference for Red Energy tend to be Focused and task oriented.

Strength	Blindspot
Driven by Achievement	Pushes others past their limits without noticing
A well developed sense of urgency	Acts before listening to others’ views
Gets to the point quickly	Races through decisions and misses key input
Confronts issues head-on	Dismisses emotion in favour of action
